The Delineator for July.

A magazine that is filled with seasonal interest for women is the July Delineator. In it the summer fashions are exquisitely pictured, and described by such fashion authorities as Helen Berkely-Loyd and Edmond La Fontaine, of Paris, who write for the magazine exclusively. Albert Bigelow Paine's serial, "The Lucky-Piece," develops an element of mystery that adds to the interest of the story and there is also a short story Zona Gale's "The Lighted Fire"—a very delicate piece of work. A sketch of Longfellow's boyhood by Peter Fenn, also, contains a summing-up about the poet and the friends and home of his early life. T. Cromwell Lawrence describes the curious customs and costumes of Holland, in an interesting travel sketch, and W. Jay Mills relates some of the prettiest romances of the old-time summer resorts, Bordentown, New Washington and Long Branch, in a remarkably illustrated article. Something of the story and influence of the famous Christian hymn "Look of Ages" is given in a paper by A. Ian Sutherland and N. Hudson Moore writes of the evolution of the chest in "The Collector's Manual." Entertaining stories and pastimes are provided for the little ones, and a variety of articles on domestic topics will be of particular value at this season, when the demands upon the housewife are exceedingly trying.

Mad to Hunt For It.
She (at the theater)—I don't understand what the detective is supposed to be doing in this piece. He—I fancy he is looking for the plot.

It requires less effort to be polite than disagreeable.—Dallas News.

Blessed Ignorance.
He—I am told that he has more money than he knows what to do with. She—Has he, really? Such ignorance must be bliss!

Whatever are the benefits of fortune, they require a palate fit to relish and taste them.—Montaigne.

ENCOURAGE THIS PROJECT. Something Good for the Young Men and Boys of Our Town.

In every town of any importance there is, or should be, some place of entertainment or instruction for the benefit of the young men and boys. In cities such places are afforded by the Young Men's Christian Association. All who are acquainted with the work done by these associations heartily endorse and aid in sustaining them.

Through the aid of one of our enterprising citizens such, or a similar organization, will be started in Jackson. It is to be hoped that every business man and citizen who has the welfare of his town and community interests at heart will readily take hold and help to push the movement to a speedy conclusion. The plan of organization will be pushed as rapidly as the interests of the citizens demonstrate their willingness to take hold of the movement. The object of it will be to provide a suitable building (which, by the way, has been obtained) to furnish the same with the necessary articles usually found in such an organization.

A gymnasium, fitted out with the necessary appurtenances. A bath room, with shower and bath tubs.

It has been estimated that for the maintenance of the association it will be necessary to charge a membership fee of ten dollars ($10.00) per year. This fee from each member, with what we shall raise by donation, will maintain the association.

The building will be in charge of a secretary, who will be paid a reasonable salary for his services. The membership fee of ten dollars will entitle a member to all the conveniences for the term of one year. It should be understood that for the boys there shall be no charge. The gymnasium and reading rooms will be open to them at all times, under the direction of the secretary, and the parents are urged to encourage the boys to use them. The secretary of the association will be an excellent Christian gentleman. He will consider it his privilege as well as duty to instruct the boys in a course of reading and train them in the gymnasium. In this day and age it has been demonstrated that the physical man must be instructed, as well as the mental, to obtain the best specimens of manhood. Clean, healthy athletics will be taught, developing the body as well as the mind.

Therefore, it is earnestly hoped that every citizen of Jackson, or elsewhere, who is interested in the boys will aid in securing them this place of instruction. In conclusion, will add that a petition will shortly be presented to every citizen and business man of Jackson for their signatures as a member of the association. If you have boys you are interested on your own, if you have none you should be interested on your neighbor's account, and if you haven't either, you should be interested for the benefit of the community. It is a matter of personal interest and concerns each of us, individually and collectively, so give your hearty support from the start. Don't wait for some one else—its success depends on you.

Torture of a Preacher.
The story of the torture of Rev. O. D. Moore, pastor of the Baptist church of Harperville, N. Y., will interest you. He says: "I suffered agonies because of a persistent cough, resulting from the grip. I had to sleep, sitting up in bed. I tried many remedies without relief, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds, which entirely cured my cough, and saved me from consumption." A grand cure for diseases of Throat and Lung troubles. At Jackson Drug Co., druggists; price 50¢ and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

The Kansas City Journal points out that while the farmers compose 50 per cent of our population, they commit only 2 per cent of our crimes. The simple life keeps close to the soil and far from influences that beget crime.

The Famous Little Pills, A. R. E. R. cure Constipation, Sick Headache, Biliousness, etc. They never grow or sicken, but impart early rising energy. Good for either children or adults. Bob Moore, Lafayette, Ind., says: "No use talking, DeWitt's Little Early Risers to their work. All others I have used grip and make me sick. DeWitt's Little Early Risers brought the long sought relief. They are perfect." Sold by M. S. Crain.

Mad Chase.
Millions rush in mad chase after health, from one extreme of fadism to another, when, if they would only eat good food and keep their bowels regular with Dr. King's New Life Pills, their troubles would pass away.

Prompt relief and quick cure for liver and stomach trouble. 25¢ at Jackson Drug Co.'s Drug Store; guaranteed. The laxative effect of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets is so agreeable and so natural that you do not realize it is the effect of a medicine. For sale by Jackson Drug Co.

The gospel of happiness is one that every woman should lay to heart. What it means to a man to come home at night to a cheerful wife no one but he who has had to fight the hard battle of life knows. If he is prosperous it is an added joy; but it is in misfortune that it shines like a star in the darkness. A complaining wife can kill the last bit of hope and courage in a sorely troubled heart, while a cheerful one gives new courage to begin the fight over again.

Cuban Diarrhoea.

U. S. soldiers who served in Cuba during the Spanish War know what this disease is, and that ordinary remedies have little more effect than so much water. Cuban diarrhoea is almost as severe and dangerous as a mild attack of cholera. There is one remedy, however, that can always be depended upon as will be seen by the following certificate from Mrs. Minnie Jacobs, of Houston, Texas: "I hereby certify that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cured my husband of a severe attack of Cuban diarrhoea, which he brought home from Cuba. We had several doctors but they did him no good. One bottle of this remedy cured him, as one neighbor will testify. I thank God for so valuable a medicine." For sale by Jackson Drug Co.

An exchange asks: "What has become of the boy in patches?"

Why, bless your soul he is out on the farm hopping elds sixteen hours a day. He will come to town after awhile to run the banks and the stores and the successful lawyers and preachers and physicians. Don't worry about the boy in patches. It's the slick looking store-clothed, nicely groomed lad you want to inquire about. He's the fellow that's going to drop through a crack in the sidewalk out of sight one of these days.

Just What Everyone Should Do.

Mrs. J. T. Barber, of Lewiston, Ga., always keeps a bottle of Chamberlain's Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand ready for instant use. Attacks of colic, cholera morbus and diarrhoea come on so suddenly that there is no time to hunt a doctor or go to the store for medicine. Mr. Barber says: "I have tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which is one of the best remedies I ever saw. I keep a bottle of it in my room as I have had several attacks of colic and it has proved to be the best medicine I ever used. Sold by Jackson Drug Co.

Boys, don't kill the birds. If you must kill something, why not hunt down snakes and rats, but the harmless feathered songsters should have our protection.

George B. Cortelyou, the new postmaster general, believes that postmasters should be appointed for their ability to attend to business instead of to play politics. He says that the best service a postmaster can give his party is to conduct his office in a proper manner. Under his reign it is said political activity will be discontinued and strict attention to business details exacted.

Quality vs. Quantity.
Hard muscles and strong body do not depend on the quantity of food you eat, but on its perfect digestion and proper assimilation. When you take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure your system gets all the nourishment out of all the food you eat. It digests what you eat regardless of the condition of the stomach and conveys the nutrient properties to the blood and tissues. This builds up and strengthens the entire system. Kodol cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Belching, Sour Stomach. Weak Heart, etc. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for what is sometimes called America's national disease—Dyspepsia—is destined to eventually work a wonderful and lasting benefit to sufferers from this distressing and mind-boggling condition. Sold by M. S. Crain.

The flower embowered home is the one that attracts. Take, for instance, two cottages in a city, one without the flowers, trees, grass and the one with these conveniences, and the one that gives the best appearance will rent for $5 per month more than the other that may be in every way similar. There is no question about the advantage of beautiful environments they are both satisfying and gratifying.

A Fearful Fate.

It is a fearful fate to have to endure the terrible torture of Piles. "I can truthfully say," writes Harry Colson, of Masonville, Ia., "that for Blind, Bleeding, Itching, and Protruding Piles, Bucklin's Arnica Salve is the best cure made." Also best for cuts, burns and injuries. 25¢ at Jackson Drug Co., druggists.

THREE MEN KILLED
And Four Wounded in a Fight
Sunday Near a Wolfe County
Tiger.

A fight occurred near Lee City on last Sunday morning, in which about sixteen men were engaged, three were killed and four wounded. The dead are: Andy Wilson, who received one shot in the abdomen, and died immediately; Henry Freeman, who was pierced by thirteen balls, but lived until nine o'clock Sunday night; Harlan Dykes, who was shot once and died Monday. James Dykes was mortally wounded, being shot once in the breast and once in the thigh. John Allen and Lee Allen were wounded, but not seriously.

The trouble came up near a blind tiger conducted by Grant Reed. It appears that he had prepared a picnic, a banjo picking contest, and other amusements to draw a crowd to his tiger.

Mr. Wilson, the Allens and the Dykes belong to prominent families and it is feared that there will be more bloodshed. Squire Elias Shockey has issued warrants for all the parties engaged in the difficulty and Sheriff Frank Stamper is in the vicinity making arrests and it is hoped that law and order will prevail and the guilty be punished.

It seems strange that in the good county of Wolfe such tragedies could occur.

Blind tigers and a disrespect for the law generally get up trouble in any community, however good it may have been.

"What kind of a lookin' man is he?" Tip Taylor asked.

"Great, big, broad shouldered feller," said Al. "Six feet tall if he's an inch. Had a kind of a deer skin jacket on when I seen 'im an' breeches an' moccasins made o' some kind o' hide. I recollect one day I was over on the ridge two miles or more from the Stillwater, goin' south. I seen 'im gittin' a drink at the spring there in the burnt timber. An' if I ain't mistaken there was a real live panther playin' round 'im. If 'twasn't a panther 'twas pesky nigh it. I can tell ye. The critter see me fast and drew up 's back. Then the man got up quicker'n a flash. Soon's he see me, Lemmington, didn't they move! Never see no human critter run as he did! A big tree had 'cross a lot o' brush right in his path. I'll be goin' dummed if 'twasn't higher in my head! But he cleared it just as easy as a grasshopper'd go over a straw. I'd like to know where he comes from, goin' dummed like that. He's the consummate queerest animal 'a these woods."

Al emphasized this lastly view of the night man by an animated movement of his fist that held the big hunting knife with which he whittled. Then he emptied his pipe and began cutting more tobacco.

"Some says 'e's a ghost," said Tip Taylor, splitting his sentence with a yawn, as he lay on a buffalo robe in the shanty.

"Shucks an' shoeshings!" said Al. "He looks too nat'ral. Don't believe no ghost ever wore whiskers an' long hair like his. That don't hol' 'em."

This remark was followed by death silence. It seemed to lack both courage and information with which to prolong the argument.

Gerald had long been asleep, and we were all worn out with uphill traveling and the lack of rest. Uncle Eb went out to look after the horses that were tethered near us. Al rose, looked up through the free tops, ventured a guess about the weather and strode off into the darkness.

We were five days in camp, hunting snakes, fighting flies and picking blueberries. Gerald's cough had not improved at all; it was, if anything, a bit worse than it had been, and the worry of that had clouded our holiday. We were not in high spirit when finally we decided to break camp the next afternoon.

Tip had everything ready for our journey home. Each day Gerald had grown paler and thinner. As we wrapped him in a shawl and tenderly helped him into the wagon, I read his doom in his face. We saw so much of that kind of thing in our storm climate we knew what it meant. Our fate was over. We sat in silence, speeding down the long hills in the fading light of the afternoon. Those few solemn hours in which I heard only the wagon's rumble and the sweet calls of the whippoorwill—waves of music on a sea of silence—started me in a way of thought which has led me high and low these many years and still invites me. The day was near its end when we got to the first big clearing. From the top of a high hill we could see above the far forest the red rim of the setting sun, big with winding from the skein of day, that was now flying off the tree tops in the west.

We stopped to feed the horses and to take a bite of jerked venison, wrapped ourselves warmer, for it was now dusk and chilly, and went on again. The road went mostly downhill going out of the woods and we could make good time. It was near midnight when we drove in at our gate. There was a light in the sitting room, and Uncle Eb and I went in with Gerald at once. Elizabeth Brower knelt at the feet of her son, unbuttoned his coat and took off his muffler. Then she put her arms about his neck, while neither spoke nor uttered any sound. Both mother and son felt and understood and were silent.

The ancient law of God that rends asunder and makes havoc of our plans bore heavy on them in that moment, I have no doubt, but neither murmured. Uncle Eb began to pump vigorously at the estomach, while David fussed with the fire. We were all quaking inwardly, but neither betrayed a sign of it. It is a way the Puritan has of suffering. His emotions are like the deep undercurrents of the sea.

CHAPTER XII.

ON October following the events of the last chapter Gerald died of consumption, having borne a lingering illness with great fortitude. I, who had come there a homeless orphan in a basket and who with the God given eloquence of childhood had brought them to take me to their hearts and the old man that was with me as well, was now the only son left to Elizabeth and David Brower. There were those who called it folly at the time they took us in, I have heard, but he who shall read this history to the end shall see how that kind of folly may profit one or even many in this hard world.

It was a gloomy summer for all of us. The industry and patience with which Hope bore her trial night and day is the sweetest recollection of my youth. It brought to her young face a tender soberness of womanhood—a subtle change of expression that made her all the more dear to me. Every day, rain or shine, the old doctor had come to visit his patient, sometimes sitting an hour and gazing thoughtfully in his face, occasionally asking a question or telling a quaint anecdote. And then came the end.

The sky was cold and gray in the late autumn, and the leaves were drifted deep in the edge of the woodlands when Hope and I went away to school together at Hillsborough. Uncle Eb drove us to our boarding place in town. When we bade him goodby and saw him driving away alone in the wagon we hardly dared look at each other for the tears in our eyes.

David Brower had taken board for us at the house of one Solomon Rollin, universally known as Cooky Rollin.

Do you want to live where the climate is mild the year round—where labor is never oppressed by stress of weather, and where animal vitality is never lost by mere conflict with cold?

Do you want to live in a region where the resources are more varied than in any other equal area in the world, where the division of great ranches affords a fine opportunity to get a small farm that will assure you a competence?

Do you want to live where, with a minimum of labor, you can grow profitable crops of grapes and small fruit, oranges, lemons, olives, prunes and almonds, alfalfa and grain, where crops are sure, business is good and capital easily finds profitable investment?

Then go to California, where both health and opportunity await your coming.

That was one of the first things I learned at the academy. It seemed that many years ago he had taken his girl to a dance and offered her in lieu of supper cookies that he had thoughtfully brought with him. Thus cheaply he had come to lifelong distinction.

"You know Rollin's ancient history, don't you?" the young man asked who sat with me at school that first day.

"Have it at home," I answered. "It's in five volumes."

"I mean the history of Sol Rollin, the man you are boarding with," said he, smiling at me, and then he told the story of the cookies.

The principal of the Hillsborough academy was a big, brawny bachelor of Scotch descent, with a stern face and cold, gray, glaring eyes. When he stood towering above us on his platform in the main room of the building where I sat there was an alertness in his figure and a look of responsibility in his face that reminded me of the pictures of Napoleon at Waterloo. He always carried a stout ruler that had blistered a shank of every mischievous boy in school. As he stood by the line that came marching in to prayers every morning he would frequently pull out a boy, administer a loud whack or two, shake him violently and force him into a seat.

The day I began my studies at the academy I saw him put two dents in the wall with the heels of a young man who had failed in his algebra. To a bashful and sensitive youth just out of a country home the sight of such violence was appalling. My first talk with him, however, renewed my courage. He had heard I was a good scholar, and talked with me in a friendly way about my plans. Both Hope and I were under him in algebra and Latin. I well remember my first error in his class. I had misconstrued a Latin sentence. He looked at me, a smile and a sneer crowding each other for possession of his face. In a loud, jeering tone he cried, "Mirabile dictu!"

I looked at him, in doubt of his meaning.

"Mirabile dictu!" he shouted, his tongue trilling the r.

I corrected my error.

"Perfect!" he cried again. "Puer pulchre! Next!"

He never went further than that with me in the way of correction. My size and my skill as a wrestler, that shortly insured for me the respect of the boys, helped me to win the esteem of the master. I learned my lessons and kept out of mischief. But others of equal proficiency were not so fortunate. He was apt to be hard on a light man who could be handled without overexertion.

Uncle Eb came in to see me one day and sat awhile with me in my seat. While he was there the master took a boy by the collar and almost literally wiped the blackboard with him. There was a great clatter of heels for a moment. Uncle Eb went away shortly and was at Sol Rollin's when I came to dinner.

"Powerful man, ain't he?" said Uncle Eb.

"Rather," I said.

"Turned that boy into a reg'lar horse niddle," he remarked. "Must 'ave unstrung his reson."

"Unnecessary!" I said.

"Reminded me o' the time 'at Tip Taylor got his tooth pulled," said he.

"Shook 'im up so 'at he thought he'd had his neck put out o' 'fint."

Sol Rollin was one of my studies that winter. He was a carpenter by trade, and his oddities were new and delightful. He whistled as he worked, he whistled as he read, he whistled right merrily as he walked up and down the streets, a short, slight figure with a round boyish face and a fringe of iron gray hair under his chin. The little man had one big passion—that for getting and saving. The ancient thief of his race had pinched him small and narrow as a foot is stunted by a tight shoe. His mind was a bit out of register, as we say in the printing business. His vocabulary was rich and vivid and stimulating.

"Somebody broke into the arsenic today," he announced one evening at the supper table.

"The arsenic!" said somebody. "What's in it?"

"Why the place where they keep the powder," he answered.

"Oh, the arsenic!"

"Yes, the arsenic," he said, cackling with a laugh at his error. Then he grew serious.

"Stole all the ambition out of it," he added.

"You mean ammunition, don't you, Solomon?" his wife inquired.

"Certainly," said he. "Wasn't that what I said?"

When he had said a thing that met his own approval Sol Rollin would cackle most cheerfully and then crack a knuckle by twisting a finger. His laugh was mostly out of register also. It had a sad lack of relevancy. He laughed on principle rather than provocation. Some sort of secret comedy of which the world knew nothing was passing in his mind. It seemed to have its exits and its entrances, its villain, its clown and its miser who got all the applause.

While working his joy was unconfinable. Many a time I have sat and watched him in his little shop, his winning smile and a look of mischief in his eyes, and I have often wondered what he was up to.
